BIOGRAPHY

Born in Australia, Edouard Le Grelle grew up in Belgium, where his interest in photography and cinema began in his teenage years. At 18 years old, he decided to travel to the U.S.A as to improve his english.

After a few months, he got admitted into the Los Angeles Film School. First studying production, Edouard is quickly caught up and fascinated by cinematography. He acquired most of his experience by regularly assisting professor and director of photography Anthony Richmond, ASC/BSC during his classes, also accompanying him on filming sets. He then participated as an assistant on music video projects, as well as small series and short films.

5 years later, Edouard moved back to Belgium to develop his career as director of photography, by recreating his own portfolio and find his visual identity.

Today, Edouard is an experienced director of photography, both in advertising and music videos. He's worked on projects in collaboration with Bleu Nuit, for artists such as Rimin - What they called me nominated at the Berlin Music Videos Awards 2021, as well as PLK, Ichon, and Angèle.

Edouard Legrelle also worked on projects in collaboration with brands such as Nike, Google, Ikea or BMW.

Art has always been a part of Edouard's creative process. From photography with Harry Gruyaert, to the paintings of Edward Hopper, not forgetting DOP's such as Nicolas Karakatsanis, Bradford Young, Darius Khondji, or directors such as Stanley Kubrick.

Edouard also draws inspiration from his daily life by observing his surroundings, capturing emotions and moments, conveying it to the audience while staying true to the director's vision. He demonstrates his talent in his own way, bringing his ideas to life simply by showing some kind of realism in the projects he works on, as well as his work with color and light.

BIOGRAPHIE

Né en Australie, Edouard Le Grelle grandit en Belgique, où il s'intéresse dès l'adolescence à la photographie et au cinéma, puis décide à 18 ans de partir aux Etats-Unis, dans l'optique de perfectionner son anglais.

Au bout de quelques mois, il est admis à la Los Angeles Film School. Étudiant d'abord la production, Edouard est rapidement happé et fasciné par la cinématographie. C'est en assistant régulièrement le professeur et chef opérateur Anthony Richmond, ASC/BSC pendant ses cours et dans le cadre de tournages qu'il acquiert le plus d'expérience. Il commence ensuite à participer à des projets de clips, de petites séries ou encore de courts métrages en tant qu'assistant.

5 ans plus tard, Edouard se réinstalle en Belgique afin de développer sa carrière de directeur de la photographie, en se recréant un portfolio, afin de trouver son identité visuelle.

Edouard est aujourd'hui un directeur de la photographie expérimenté, aussi bien en publicité qu'en clip. Il a travaillé sur des projets en collaboration avec Bleu Nuit, pour des artistes tels que Rimon - What they called me, nommé aux Berlin Music Videos Awards 2021, ou encore PLK, Ichon, et Angèle.

Edouard Le Grelle a également travaillé sur des projets pour des marques telles que Nike, Google, Ikea ou encore BMW.

L'art a toujours fait partie du processus créatif d'Edouard. De la photographie avec Harry Gruyaert, en passant par les peintures d'Edward Hopper, sans oublier des DOP tels que Nicolas Karakatsanis, Bradford Young, Darius Khondji, ou encore des metteurs en scène tels que Stanley Kubrick.

Il puise également son inspiration dans son quotidien. Observer ce qui l'entoure, capturer ces moments de vie, ces émotions, et les retransmettre à l'audience tout en restant en adéquation avec la vision du réalisateur. Son talent se démontre dans sa manière de mettre ces idées en images, et de faire ressortir une certaine simplicité, démontrer un certain réalisme des projets sur lesquels il travaille, ainsi que sur sa gestion des couleurs et de la lumière.
